

What Makes Educate Together Schools Different?

The ethos of a school describes its spirit, character, policies and procedures – all of which influence the type of education delivered. Educate Together’s ethos is based on values of equality and human rights.

Learn Together to Live Together

Our motto describes this ethos and is based on four key principles which guide education and management policy in all our schools:

The Multi-Denominational Principle

We teach a common moral and ethical programme called Learn Together. We also facilitate parents who want to operate voluntary faith formation classes outside school hours for individual religious groups.

The Co-Educational Principle

Quite simply we teach boys and girls together and are committed to equal opportunities for girls and boys.

The Child-Centred Principle

We are committed to the child-centred principle and take the educational interests of the children as our fundamental priority.

The Democratic Principle

We embrace the input of parents, staff, supporters and children to improve the school in every possible way.

We aim to nurture and develop in our students a caring and responsible approach to society. We work hard to create a positive, comfortable atmosphere. Our underlying concept is that human diversity enhances life, enriches cultures and provides huge educational resources for current and future generations.

Our Facilities

Our school was built during the school year 2014-2015 and provides our students with a wonderful state-of-the-art learning environment. We have modern IT technology in all of our classrooms and the school campus also houses a public library and a full-size sports hall.

Our Teaching Team

Our experienced teachers are committed to continual professional development and to exploring and adopting best practice with reference to teaching practices, resources and programmes.

School Management

The school is run by a Board of Management with representatives from teachers, parents and the community.

Our Parent Association

Our P.A. plays an active role in policy development, school events, fundraising and providing opportunities for active parental support.

Learning Together

Some of the most exciting days on our school calendar are those aimed at involving the whole school community. Every year we come together for our Family Picnic, Tree Day, Intercultural Week, Human Rights Day, Heritage Day, Fair Trade, Irish language events, Spring Fair and Sports Day. We also welcome our parents to a school assembly once a month led in turn by individual classes. Life is never dull at Waterford E.T.N.S. !
